COMETHING IN THE WIND. ATISTPHASEOF THE GREAT RAIL. ROAD DEAL.

ally Trade Fails, But a New Syndicate Form per tip Furchase of the Baltimore and Onio Reilresd-The West Point Terminal May Get it After All.

NEW YORK, March 11 .- [Special.] -- It is curnesty reported that all negotiations between ferminal and Baltimore and Ohio are off. The rumor is generally believed. No reasonsher than the prevailing influence of con-scrative members of the Terminal directory. Thy insist that the deal would have segrounds for the failure to trade is assigned wy insist that the deal would have been ing off more than they could chew, and at an abandonment of the scheme was only ming to the policy of the prudential rement. dent Fahnestock, of the bank, denied this last. Adirector in the Western Union telegraph, to whom a share in the scheme was offered, remarked that the present failure might form a sis for a new deal. "The weakness of the Baltimore and Ohio any is confessed," said he, "and I ct that the sale, when it takes see, will be at a much seer price than the figure recently mentioned. he talk has exposed the fact that the floating the of the Baltimore and Ohio company is nch larger than was supposed, and I know flat some lenders have taken steps to reduce their leans in consequence of the revelations." ANOTHER SYNDICATE FORMED.

Arrangement for the purchase of the control Baltimore and Ohio by a private syndicate, which President Garrett will have an interat contemplates placing the stock in collateral most for the new company and issuing bonds ared by this trust to the amount of $10,000,the trust to the another payment of stock. The new company will issue $10,000,000 in stock and holders of nding Baltimore and Ohio stock will recare three shares of the new stock for one there of the old. The new stock will be tested as New York stock exchange. On the present lases of earnings, will receive dividends at the rate of six per cent per annum. The express ess, parlor car and telegraph lines will be sold at the best opportunity, but until that is dene will be operated as heretofore. Some difficulties in the way of the deal are said to be the Staten Island contracts.

ONE OF THE NEW SYNDICATE TALKS. The following statement is made by one of the syndicate which is about to acquire control of the Baltimore and Ohio:

"President Garrett has granted an extension of time in which to take up a majority of stock and he will not hold out on technicalities, either regarding the exact terms or time. There is no option given to any one person, but a written agreement is in this city, giving a certain party the right to buy stock and this party, although not mentioned in the contract, is clearly unstood by both Mr. Garrett and parties conducting the negotiations. The price is not more than 200, but whether it is less or not, I will not say. Mr. Garrett will be represented in the syndicate and Gould will also be represented there. The sale of property, when culminated, will bring about a attlement of the question of entering New York city and the telegraph and express lines will be sold. Mr. Sully has the same interest as before in the syndicate, and all interests are working in harmony. The negotiations ing to the sale to the Richmond Terminal failed on account of the refusal of the exeentive committee of yesterday to consent to the issue of the additional stock necessary. The stock will be paid for in cash, which will either be subscribed at once by the syndicate or loaned by the First National bank, Drexel, Morgan & Co., or Winslow, Lanier & Co., who will issue negotiable certificates for it. The probability at present, however, is that the necessary cash will be subscribed. The formaecurities may ultimately be sold to the Richmend Terminal company, but at a higher price than that paid by the syndicate." AND NOW THEY SAY IT IS NOT OFF. BALTIMORE, March 11.-A private dispatch received in this city this afternoon, from New York, says the deal is not off and that it will asummated. The following has just been issued from the Baltimore and Ohio railroad air. Garrett's attention was called to news-taper reports regarding the proposed railway ar-magements. He refused to talk further upon the subject, but said: Whatever arrangements were made would commend themselves to the com-munity of Baltimore and be recognized as protec-tive, wise and valuable to all the interests in-folyed.

A GIGANTIC PLAN ON FOOT. Washington, March 11.—[Special.]—Some prominent railroad men in Washington regard the pending negotiations for the control of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad as only a part of the most gigantic business plan ever conceived. They say that ever since the interstate commerce bill became law leading spirits in railroad management in the country have been trying to devise some method of saving the tailreads from the disaster which they believe coming, and which would fol-the passage of the antimonopoly measures of the act. The only way to save the railroads from the operations of this section of the bill is to bring them all under one management, to consolidate the vast rail-road interests of the country into one great Syndicate. It was estimated a corporation with $10,000,000,000 capital stock would be necessary to accomplish the gigantic design. Such a corporation could be formed if all the railroads were to subscribe to the stock and pay for it by a transfer of their entire property to the central corporation. Wild as the plan may seem at the first mention, there are prominent railroad men who believe that it will be realized, and that the big deal now pending will from the nucleus for this stupend ous combina-It is said that Mr. Sully and his friends are in harmony with this movement, and that it is backed by some of the most powerful

It is said that the wreck was caused by running at too high rate of speed caused by running at too high rate of speed. "General Hoke is one of the best workers I ever saw. He began this work four months ago. In that time he has secured charters from three state legislatures, has placed five engineer corps in the field and a part of the line is ready to let out for grading contract. He will be ready to put out all these contracts probably in April. Then the road will be built speedily, there is no doubt of it. From the influences behind is I have have not the slightest doubt of its early completion. If the Baltist est doubt of its early completion. If the Balti-more and Ohio scoops is realized our line will be a greater necessity than ever; in any event its completion is a reasonable certainty."

The Southern Passenger Agents.
Washington, March 11.—The committee of the southern passenger agent's convention, which adjourned here recently, has decided upon a general national drill rate for all travelers under the inter state commerce law. It is understood they cannot make a discrimination in favor of persons, so the committee has declined to give cheap soldiers rate to citizens, travelers also. Three quarters of a cent per mile is the rate fixed, for parties of not less than twenty-five in one party, for a short line distance traveled, from all points to Washington and return. This rate which, applies to citizens and soldiers, is the lowest ever given for similar purposes, about one-half that given the New Orleans exposition.

Passengers All Right.

Baltimore, March 11.—The steamship Rhein, Captain Jahns, reached her wharf at ten o'clock today. The captain reports that he encountered a dense fog on Monday night and being unable to distinguish lights on the coast, slowed up his vessel and moved cautiously. At 4:20 Tuesday morning, she was going dead slow when she grounded amidship, though the lead had been constantly thrown since the preceding night. A quantity of coal and thirty tons of salt were thrown overboard which did not float her, and fifty tons of coal were thrown over after daylight. Some of the nine hundred passengers were transferred to other vessels and a part of the four hundred tons general cargo, with which she left Bremen, was also put on board other vessels. Yesterday morning she floated and proceeded on the voyage. The damage to the hull is supposed to be slight, as she is not taking any water. She will be put into the dry dock tomorrow morning when a survey will be made. The passengers transferred reached this port today by a hear steams? THE ATTEMPT TO DEFEAT MR. RANDALL. Mr. Randall's friends in Washington pay little attention to the scheme now being considered by the Pennsylvania legislature to redistrict the state so as to make Mr. Randall's election impossible, and to give the republicans certain control of all six of the Philadelphia districts. A similar effort has been made before without success. It is now revived by William Singlerly, editor of the Record, and one of the leading democrats of Philadelphia, aided by James McManns, a prominent local republican boss. Singerly has opposed Mr. Randall bitterly for years, and has formed a coalition with McManns to take his political scalp with a gerrymander. There are severa difficulties in their way. Should the republicans attempt to make six districts for themselves in Philadelphia, they would make the tenure of two or three of them precarious, whereas they now have five dead sure. The plan is to put Mr. Randall in a district with a nominal republican majority of three thousand. But this arrangement might not secure his de-feat. His great personal popularity in Phila-delphia and his recognized ability might overcome such odds. Mr. Morrison, of Illinois, was sent to congres for five terms in succession from a district which had a republican majority of two thousand, and three thousand adverse majority will not be sufficient to keep Mr. Randall down. It is doubtful if the proposed gerrymander will be accepted by the Pennsylvania legislature. When Mr. Randall was asked about this matter he said:

"I have not given it any consideration. I shall run in any district the legislature may make, and if the people do not desire me to represent them any longer they can vote for

WHITNEY'S EXPLANATIONS. The Secretary Reports on Methods of Pro-

The Secretary Reports on Methods of Pro-curing Naval Designs.

Washington, March 11.—Secretary Whit-ney today furnished a statement touching the method employed by the navy department to procure plans for naval vessels and machinery. Concerning the reported discharge of Draughts-man Terry, at Chatham dockyard, England, he says:

says:
There is no truth in any statement which connects the navy department with anything claudes the in the way of obtaining plans abroad or the secrets of foreign governments. It is the business of every government to know what implements of war are possessed by others, together with their characteristics, and the information can be easily obtained, if the necessary trouble is taken, with out the necessity of resorting to any questionable method.

Relative to the purchase by the department of designs made by Chief Constructor White, of the English admiralty, Secretary Whitney says that White was not chief constructor of the admiralty when he made and the department purchased designs, but was in the employment of Sir William Armstrong & Co.

The secretary quotes from Secretary Chan-when he made and the department purchased designs, but was in the employment of Sir William Armstrong & Co.

The secretary quotes from Secretary Chandler's annual report for 1884, where he speaks in terms of bigh commendation of the firm of Armstrong & Co. and ranks them as first among ship builders. He then proceeds as follows:

After the construction of the Esmeralda, they built the Naniwa Kan for the Japanese government, which was an improved Esmeralda, and on trial she was reported to have made nearly nine-teen knots, the highest speed then reached by any unarmored cruiser. I decided to purchase the working drawing of this ship and her machinery for the purpose of placing them at the disposal of cur naval architects to see by what method they attained so much greater a speed over there than we were able to reach here. While the matter was being negotiated, the Armstrongs, through their raval architect, White, made a still later design, which is called No. 27, which they offered in competition to the Spanish government, from which they guaranteed either 19 or 19%, knots speed—I forget for the moment which, the vessel being somewhat larger than the Naniwa Kan. This design was not rejected by the Spanish government although in the competition it did not win. The Thompsons in sving agreed to guarantee twenty knots speed upon a boat of larger displacement, were given the contract, and are now building a boat for the Spanish government. The boat which the Thompsons proposed to the Spanish government was out of the question for us, because it was too large in tonnege and too expensive to come within the limits faxed by the statues, and I should not have becught the plans of that boat even at the same price. They were offered to us at the price of 80,000, which offer I rejected and preferred the design of the Hawthornes, and I should not have becught the plans of that boat even at the world smoot, for the Spanish government was out of the question for us, because it was too large in tonnege and too expensive the co whall be produced. It will be seen that the effectiveness of the machinery in producing horse power is nearly twice that required by the contract upon the Boston and Atlanta. In these latter cases one tonof machinery is guaranteed to produce a little over five horse power, and in the cases of cruisers Nos. 2 and 3 a ton is guaranteed to produce nearly ten-horse power per iton. All this, it will be seen is stimulating to our own people, and in the end they will probably succeed in doing as well or better than these results show.

er per ton. At this, it will be seen a standard to our own people, and in the end they will probably succeed in doing as well or better than these results show.

The secretary characterizes as ridiculous the idea that the department's advertisement soliding the submission of designs can be regarded as an attempt to bribe foreign haval officers and on this point he says:

The advertisement is simply a copied statute, passed in 1822, which provides "that before any of the vessels hereby authorized shall be contracted for, or commenced, the secretary of the navy shall by proper public advertisement and notice invite all engineers and mechanics of established reputation and all reputable manufacturers of vessels, steam engineers and mechanics of established reputation and all reputable manufacturers of vessels, steam engineers, boilers and ordnance, having or controlling regular establishments and being engaged in tusiness; all officers of the navy, and especially all naval constructors, steam engineers and ordnance officers of the navy, to submit designs." This advertisement was writuen in the form in which it had always been put out, and which the law indicated. It was published in England and France in order to bring it to the attention of the persons referred to by the law as engineers and mechanics of established reputation, and all reputable manufacturers of vessels, steam engines, boilers and so on, and had nopreference whatever to any naval officers abroad, It would have been, of course, absund to publish such a thing if that had been the intention. The advertisement was a copy of the one which had been inserted before, and which was in accordance with the statute.

THE BRAKEMEN'S STRIKE. No Movement of Freight from Youngstown

Youngsrown, O., March 11.—No mevement has been made today by either the New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio and the Pennsylvania companies to start freight trains in their yards, though it was reported that each company would have a large force on hand to take the places of the striking yardmen. The road brakemen on the Mahoning division, running through freight trains from here to Cleveland, places of the striking yardmen. The road brakemen on the Mahoning division, running through freight trains from here to Cleveland, struck this morning and joined the yardmen, the last through freight leaving here at 1 o'clock. This closes the freight traffic between Youngstown and Cleveland over the New York and Pennsylvania and Ohio railroad. All heavy mogul engines belonging to the New York, Lake Erie and Western in use on the Mahoning division and main line of New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio have been ordered home and are being sent out as rapidly as possible, indicating that the Erie will probably surrender its lease of the New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio, as it is known that President Adams and other officials are now in New York having a conference with the Erie officials.

CLEVELAND, O., March 11.—The strike of switchmen, on the New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio railroad, is becoming more serious than was expected. This morning the freight brakemen and conductors refusel to take out trains made up by green hands, and all roadmen along the line are said to be on the eve of quitting work until the trouble with the switchmen is adjusted. For several days past an occasional freight train has been made up and sent out, but nothing of the kind can be done todsy, and the prospects are that the road will soon be blocked.

PITTSBURG, March 11.—The freight brakemen's strike on the Baltimore and Ohio road, is virtually at an end and trains will be running as usual by Monday or Tuesday next. Several trains were sent out and received today without any demonstration on the and the strikers. Trains were made up and the trains will be running as usual by Monday or Tuesday next. WE WILL NOT HAVE THE MILLS. Armour's Syndicate Bought Off by the Cotton Seed Syndicate.

March 11.-The statement is mad here by Mr. Webster, one of the firm of Armour & Co., that the firm has decided not to build cotton-seed oil mills at various points throughout the south, as heretofore announced. This is in direct contradiction of the statement

This is in direct contradiction of the statement made by the firm four days ago, but the fact that the mills are not to be built appears to be absolute. It is intimated that the firm has arranged with a cotton-seed oil syndicate to furnish them with oil at a contract price, which result was accomplished owing to the threat to build opposition mills.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—The statements in the Chicago dispatch quoting Mr. Webster, member of the Armour firm, were foreshadowed in the financial gossip of a New York paper yesteday, and in what purported to be an interview with a gentleman connected with the Cotton Oil Trust. The reasons for failure to carry out the scheme were the same as those given in the Chicago dispatch today.

A Desperate Boy Murderer.

Louisa, Ky., March 11.—News has been received from a lonely farming community on Cats Fork, in Lawrence county, of a terrible tragedy. Samuel Smith, aged sixteen, who had had some difficulty with a neighbor, Stephen Hammond, yesterday armed himself with a revolver and went over to Hammond's, following him into the house. Hammond then reached for his rifle, but Smith fired and killed him. Hammond's wife and children, a boy and girl, attacked the murderer, but he soon fatally wounded Mrs. Hammond, and as the children attempted to escape he filled them both with balls. Thinking he had killed the entire family, he fled to the mountains and has not yet been caught. Mrs. Hammond will die, and the children may not recover. It was hours after the shooting before neighbors came, attracted by the cries of the boy.

NEW YORK, March 11 .- [Special.] - All Brooklyn was in mourning today over the death of Rev. Henry Ward Beecher. Public offices were closed, business was entirely suspended and memorial services were held in a large number of churches in the vicinity of Plymouth church. Up town streets were deserted as early as 7 o'clock. Fulton avenue was througed with people, hurrying in the di-rection of Plymouth church. Lines of police were stationed at the ends of the block on which the church is situated, and no one was allowed to pass through the grounds unless he

The side streets were packed with people, who hung around, hoping that they might be able to get in without a ticket. Members of Plymouth, Company G, of the Thirteenth regiment, of which Mr. Beecher was chaplain, were stationed at the doors of the church and in the lecture room. The whole interior was turned into a perfect flower garden, and the fragrant perfume of roses pervaded the air. The walls, galleries and organ were covered with evergreens and calls lilies. The reading desk was covered with French roses and vines, as was also the chair in which Mr. Beecher sat for so many years—a floral emblem in the for so many years—a floral emblem in the shape of a triangle, on top of which were perched two white doves, with white ribbons in their bills. The facade of the gallery was covered with potted plants. The pulpit was loaded down with flowers and floral emblems, sent by friends and cifferent organizations.

There was a large delegation of colored ministers present.

At halft-past 10 o'clock, Rev. Dr. Charles H. Hall, robed in his white surplice, and accompanied by S. B. Heliday, entered the church and accended the platform. When the music crassed, Dr. Hall commenced to read in low but clear tones, the opening sentences of the Protestant Episcopal burial services.

After these a double quartette, composed of Mrs. Shelley, soprano; Miss Cavanah, aito; M-Grant, seprano; Mrs. Rosan, alto; Mr. Gadt, Ar. Warreproch, tenors; Mr. Brown, Mr. Stews, basso, and a chorus of sixty voices sang the burial chant—

Brown and General Horatio C. King. After the first lesson Dr. Hall commenced his ora-tion. During its delivery there was not a dry eye in the house and several times he was compelled to stop for a short time to gain con-trol of his voice. Dr. Hall pronounced the benediction and the vast audience slowly filed out of the church. It was a notable gathering and one long to be remembered by those pres-ent.

THE PROPLE IN LINE.

The of schurches in which services were held we would to the utmost extent of their capacity. Not a vacant seat, not an unoccupied foot of standing room was there in Plymouth church. The surrounding streets in all directions were crowded with people waiting patiently for their turn to gaze upon the face of the dead preacher. It is estimated that fully 55,000 people attended the services in the various churches, and that fully twice that number were gathered in the streets in the neighborhood of Plymouth church.

After the conclusion of the services at Plymouth church, the public was admitted to view the body as it laid in state. The people were formed in line along Orange and down Henry streets, with policemen every few yards to keep late comers from breaking in. In a short time the line extended for two blocks, and two hours after the doors were thrown epen the line was nearly a quarter of a mile long, or three times the length of that of the previous day. The people filed in church two abreast, divided file at the coffin and passed on and out through the meeting room in the rear of the through the meeting room in the rear of the

Mr. Willia is some years older than Mr. Beecher was and he came a long distance to pay the last tribute to his departed associate of the stormy scenes of the late war.

The doors of the church were closed, and then the officers who had been on duty filed past the coffin. Members of company G and a few church members then passed the bier for a last leok at their beloved paster. The church was cleared of people, and the military resumed their silent vigit.

Mrs. Beecber and family will come down at nine o'clock in the morning, and then the coffin lid will be closed and the body removed to the cemetery. It was noticed tonight that the body had began to change. The face was slightly discolored near the eyes. None but the family will be present at the private interment. THE CHURCH CLOSES

The Body Expected to Arrive Sunday Night—The Funeral.

St. Louis, March 11.—The remains of Captain James B. Eads, who died at Nassau, Bahama Island, on the 8th instant, are expected to arrive at Jacksonville, Fla., by the steamer Monticello, from Nassau, Sunday night or Monday morning. Colonel James F. Hew, secretary and treasurer of the Wabash Westera railway and son-in-law of Captain Eads, left here tonight for Jacksonville, where he will meet Mrs. Eads and Mrs. Hazard, daughter, who were with Captain Eads when he died, and will accompany them and the body to St. Louis. The funeral will be in this city.

Death From Apoplexy.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—Judge Charles E. Washington, March 11.—Judge Charles E. Sinclair, a prominent member of the bar of Prince William county, Va., 59 years of age, was found dead on the floor at his home in Manassas this morning. Death is supposed to have resulted fro apoplexy. In 1857 the deceased was appointed united States district judge of Utah by President Buchanan, and during the war he was in the secret service of the confederacy.

LONDON, March 11.—Lytton Edward Sothers, the actor, son of the late E. A. Sothern, died of MRS. PARSONS IN JAIL.

Death of Lytton Sothern.

The Female Anarchist Strikes a Town and is Not Tolerated. COLUMBUS, O., March 11.-Lucy B. Parsons the lecturing anarchist, was refused a hall by a local military company, where she proposed to speak. She called on the mayor to protes against such action, and became so abusive and demonstative that she was locked up. When Mrs. Parsons called on the manage from hearly every social, political, or religious organization in New York and Brooklyn. There was a large delegation of colored ministers present.

At halft-past 10 o'clock, Rev. Dr. Charles H. Hall, robed in his white surplice, and accompanied by S. B. Hotiday, antored the church and accended the platform. When the music crassed, Dr. Hall commenced to read in low but clear tones, the opening sentences of the Protestant Episcopal burial services.

After these a double quartette, composed of Mrs. Shelley, soprano; Miss Cavanah, aito; Mr. Grant. soprano; Mrs. Rosan, alto; Mr. Galf, Mr. Warrenroth, tenors; Mr. Brown, Mr. Stews, basso, and a chorus of sixty voices sang the burial chant—

Lord, Let Known Mine End.

The lesson was read by Dr. Hall and prayer was delivered by Rev. S. B. Holliday. The rest of the musical programme was as follows: Anthem—Blessed Are The Departed—Spohe. Hymn—Jesus, Lover of My Soul—Zand. Sentence—Heard a Voice—Shelly.

The organ was presided over by Henry Eyre Brown and General Horatio C. King. After the first lesson Dr. Hall commenced his orament of the armory, where the speech was to have been delivered, and found that she could though a number of them have called. Quite a crowd gathered at the armory to attend the meeting, not knowing that Mrs. Parsons had been arrested, but none of them were allowed to come in, being informed that the meeting would not take place. They held a sort of indignation meeting about the hall, but soon dispersed. Mrs. Parsons was seen in her cell, and stated that this is an effort to muzzle free preach: that she has lectured in seventeen. speech; that she has lectured in seventeen states, and this is the first time she has ever been molested. NOTSATISFIED WITH THE VERDICT.

A Mob Brakes Into a Jall and Hangs a Convict.

FALMOUTH, Ky., March 11.—The trial of William Jackson for the murder of Brode Fryer, in April, 1886, in this place, has occupied the attention of the criminal court for the last three days, and yesterday resulted in a verdict of twenty years in the penitentiary. At the the time of the killing there was no regular examining trial, the authorities fearing a mob violence, which was at the time quite demonstrative and openly talked of in the streets, to allay which, the prisoner was quietly shipped to the Covington, Ky., jail, where he has been confined for the last year. The ruse at the time barely saved him, by the clever management of the sheriff and other suntorities. Last night a crowd of masked men broke into the jail and took possession of Jackson for the purpose of lynching him. They moved out of town along the line of the Kentucky Central railroad. Not a shot was fired. Jackson was taken some distance and hung to a tree, when the crowd dispersed.

CONFESSED ON THE SCAFFOLD.

Hanging of Henry Artis for the Murder of His Stepdaughter.

Brainfield, N. C., March 11.—Henry Artis, colored, was hanged at Goldsboro today for the murder of his stepdaughter, in November last. During his trial and imprisonment he disclaimed any knowledge of the crime, but today on the scaffold he confessed his guilt. The coolness and nerve of the criminal were remarkable. He said he was going from the gallows to his God, and he would rather be on the scaffold with faith and belief in his cternal happiness than to live in ten thousand worlds like this.

At 11:30 o'clock the trap was sprung. His neck was broken and life was lextinct in ten minutes. His body was turned over to his family for burial.

Tetrall Square Being Beautified-High Street Par Tower Park and Rose cark-The Fire Bay's Tribute - A Stroll Through the City-A Peace Warrant-Other News.

MACON, Ga., March 11.-[Special.]-Your prespondent, worried with the listless monotony of Mulberry street, set out for a stroll through the beautiful residence portion of the city, among the western hills. The first place visited was Tatnall square. This fair domain was a bequest to the city of Macon, made years ago, and was intended to be used as a park and pleasure resort. When first donated it was away off from the city, and few were the dwellers in that locality. Scanty scrub oaks and stunted pines were scattered about the fine elevated lateau. Old Mercer and its ample grounds flanked it on the southern side.

The first attempt at utilizing it was made years ago when Mayor Gustin, who was a practical landscape gardener, attempted to lay off walks, squares and circles in the park. Public spirited, but misguided citizens spent two thousand five hundred dollars in putting a fence around it. There are only a few broken panels left near university place now, to show for it. A broad walk was begun at the college front and carried direct'y across the park north and south. A very little of the old em-bank ment remains.

Dr. A. J. Battle and other prominent citizens have at last decided to improve it. They are going to have the city surveyor go over the ground, and from a central point they will construct two circular walks and then eight lateral ones, extending to all the points and angles of the square.

Trees are being planted and the ancient oaks new standing are being pruned and trimmed ap, and sod will be set in the rough places. If the city will only help them out the good people of that part of the city, which is rapidly being built up, will soon have a park there that will be a thing of beauty.

Down on High street the clazens have taken up a little plat of no-man's-land, and are making a pretty little park out of it. The cost is small, and the gain is immeasurably great.

Rose park was begun last year, and furnished enjoyment to a great many people during the sultry days when the summer was waning. It will be further developed as fast as the means can be obtained. Two other parks are contemplated, one in front of Wesleyan, by which the romantic spring dell will be utilized, and another on Mulburry street, between Second and Third The latter will be a memorial of the brave fire boys, who for thirty years have served the ity of Macon. It is said that they will make this little park one of the prettiest in the city. It will have fountains, grass plats, shrubbery and flowers, and will be a favorite resting place for the business men of this vicinity, when the shadows lengthen and the cares and the toils of the day are over.

There is no doubt that Macon people feel a greater interest in parks than they have ever felt before, and the result can but be good for

BACK TO THE OLD HOME. Hon. W. A. Huff at the Funeral of His Old Friend. Macon, Ga., March 11.—[Special.]—Today Mergan Clarke, who died yesterday, was car-ried to his old home at Liberty church, Rut-land, for burial. Hon. W. A. Huff went down to the funeral, and on his return he was interviewed by your correspondent.

Mr. Huff was born and bred among the gray levels of Echeeconnee, and it is a revelation to hear him talk about his early life there.

"Is it true that you hauled lightwood knots to Macon to sell?"

"Yes, it is true. Not that my father was weally to live without it. Was unable to live without it, but it was a paying business, and I guess I have hauled five hundred loads of wood and I have hauled five hundred loads of wood and five hundred loads of lumber from there to liacon in the old days. My father was a good liver, as the saying goes, lived in a good house, owned a number of slaves, and farmed on the eld hog and hominy plan. But it remained for John, my youngest brother, to fully develop the old place."

"Tell me about it," pleaded the scribe, hungry

"Tell me about it," pleaded the scribe, hungry for an item that was not routine.

"Well, my father, as I said, was a square up and down farmer, and he made from eighteen to twenty-two bales of cotton on the place. I used to gin it and see to the packing of it. At father's death, John Huff was nineteen years old. He stayed with mother, all the rest having got scattered about, and made a very good crop the first year. The next he came to me and proposed to huy the place. He offered six thorsand year. The next he came to me and proposed to buy the place. He offered six thousand dollars for it, and I gave him five years to pay it in. That was in 1873. In three years he paid me every dollar for it, and the third year he made a hundred and twenty-five bales of cotton on it. Poor fellow, he worked himself to death in four years, but he did tear up the earth there while he was at it, and dying he left his wife in fine circumstances. He hauled three leads of wool to Macon in one day whereas I used to think it good work to get in one. They talk about him out there till yet, and I heard an old neighbor lamenting his death today."

death today. "How about fruit and melons out there?" 'That is a very important question just now.

I saw a farm of fifty acres already planted in melons today. Another farm of one hundred and fifty acres is being planted near Wolden.

Many smaller farms are devoted to fruit and melon growing. It is a strange fact that Jim Finley, of Augusta been developing that in. Finley, of Augusta, began developing that in-dustry on a farm adjoining my father's, years

"He was the pioneer in that line in this part of the country. He and my father were an tagonists, and representative men of the hog and hominy and the diversified methods in farming. Finley got rich off his peaches and melons, and gave his name to one of the finest rieties of watermelons ever produced in orgis. His children are still making money

"Are the farmers making any show yet?"

"Yes, they are beginning to jostle things around. There is only one feature that looks edd to me. That is the absence of fences. What few old fences are left are torn and scattered and broken, and it gives the country a haggard look, and the absence of hogs and cattle running at large, adds to the dilapidated look. It is only in appearance, however, for there are It is only in appearance, however, for there are no better farmers in this section than the farmers of Rutland district." "I guess you'll be going fishing down there before long,"

"I was thinking about that today. When I saw the dogwoods blooming around my old home I thought that the fishing season was begun, and I longed to get out and ramble among the woods and fish in the creek as in the good old days of yore. It was a pleasure to me to revisit the seenes of my youth and shake hands with my old neighbors again."

Then the scribe retired and left Mr. Huff with his pleasant memories of brighter days.

A TRAGEDY IN BALDWIN COUNTY. C. I. Robinson Kills Abe Youngblood, in Coopersville.

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., March 11.—[Special.]

The following note was received at 12 o'clock today by Coroner Scott: Dear Sir. I have shot and killed Abe Young-bleod, of Washington county. Come down and hold an inquest. Tell Sheriff Eunis to come. I am here subject to the order of the law. Yours, etc.,

The cause of the tragedy is about as follows: One year ago Robinson loaned Youngblood five dollars. A few days ago Robinson reminded Youngblood of the debt and asked for a remittance. Youngblood at once boarded the car at his home (Davisboro,) and came up to Cooperville, where Robinson clerked. Robinson was absent and Youngblood notified Cooper, Robinson's father-in-law, that he intended killing Robinson.

Robinson was made acquainted with Young blood's threat and when he went to the store this morning carried his pistol with him. About 9 o'clock, Youngblood came up and began cursing Rebinson, and with his hand in his pistol pocket applied to Robinson a foul epithet and threatened his life. Robinson saw that he was in a dangerous position and drawing his pistol shot Youngblood in his breast, near his heart and blew his brains out, killing him instantly. Robinson is a quiet, peaceable man while Youngblood has a reputation of an overbearing bully. The coroner's jury justified Robinson in protecting himself. Both parties are married. When the coroner reached the scene he found Youngblood with his hands in his pocket on his pistol.

THE VERDICT SURPRISED THEM. The Trial of Toombs Bryant in Clarke Superior Court.

ATHENS, Ga., March 11.—[Special.]—The principal criminal case before the court was Toombs Bryant, charged with murder. This murder created a great deal of excitement at the time. A family of bad negroes living in Grove Hill district had to be gotten rid of, and a party of men went to the house and whipped them out. The negroes were arrested and carried to Danielsville. One of them died from the wounds received in the fight, warrants were taken out for the white men who and the killing, but when the sheriff went who are the killing, but when the sheriff went for them the had all gone but Toombs Bry-ant and Isham Cheaten

The case against Toombs by Wednesday, and Captain W. B. Bennett and E. K. Lumpkin, of Athens; Frank Colley, of Washington, and John J. Strickland and U. W. Meadows, of Danielsville, appeared for the de-fendant, and Solicitor General Howard for the state. A jury was soon empanelled and the witnesses sworn. Judge Lumpkin had the courtbouse cleared of all the spectators, so that it would not disqualify them in case a new trial was granted. The attorneys on both sides did well, and fine speeches were made for the defense and the state.

The jury retired, and a great many thought that they would be out only a few minutes and bring a verdict of not guilty, but the few minutes lengthened into hours, and the longer they stayed the worse it appeared for Bryant. After remaining out until Thursday morning they returned a verdict of guilty of man-slaughter in the commission of an unlawful act. The attorneys immediately applied for a new trial, and the bond was fixed at $750. The attorneys for the defense are certain of cetting ys for the defense are certain of getting a new trial.

Jim was on the tramp, stopped at Whigham and stayed at a colored boardinghouse all night. Morning came, and he prepared to leave. His landlady demanded pay. He drew his pocket artillery and threatened to kill her. A police officer nabbed and put Jim in the guardhouse and 'took away his pistol. Afterwards he requested the officer to take him down to a negro's cabin. On the way he jerked loose and broke for the woods, with the officer in close pursuit. After a mile chase he faced about, swore he would die before he would be arrested, and opened war with lightwood knots and limbs upon the officor. He met the attack by opening fire with his revolver, bringing Jim to the ground with a ball through his thigh. It is not mortal. Carnesville Register: G. W. Fitzwater came to this county during the winter, and has been teaching school at Middle river. Last week Mrs. Mary E. Fitzwater, wife of Mr. Fitz-water, strived in Carnesville from West Virginia, and sued out a writ of habeas corpus for the recovery of her five-year-old boy. The whole matter has been amicably adjusted outside of the courthouse. Mrs. Fitzwater will return home in a few days with the little boy, and in a short time join Mr. Fitzwater in Tennessee.

One of the acction hands, a white man, on the Dublin division of the Wrightsville and Tennille railroad happened to a possible fatal accident near Lovett one day last week. The section hands, under Mr. C. B. Kessier, were running a poll car along when they, in rounding a curve, suddenly discovered a tree top across the track, whereupon each one leaped from the car to save himself an injury. One of the men, pretry badly excited, leaped in from of the running car and was run over receiving of the running car and was run over, receiving injuries that is feared will prove fatal. The railroad company have secured the services of skilled physicians, and although his condition is considered quite critical, he may possibly recover.

Irwinton Appeal: On Saturday night as Allen Pierce, J. E. Ogbarn and Ike Collins were on their way home from Stephensville, Ogburn and Collins got into a difficulty, when the former struck the latter with a large piece of heart scantling fracturing the skull some three neart scanting fracturing the skull some three inches or more. Dr. Duggan was summoned, and pronounced the wound fatal. Collins is a poor n an and has a wife and chi'dren dependent upon him. Whisky is said to be the cause of the trouble. Although we live in a prohibition county it don't seem war, hard to get a bottle filled in Stephensville. We hope the next errol intry will investigate the metter. next grand jury will investigate the matter and see that the law is inforced. Collins died yesterday morning at 5 o'clock. Corner Ethnidge held an inquest over the dead body. Warrants were issued just as soon as Collins died for Pierce and Ogburn both, but Ogburn was not to be found.

Albany News: That eldest inhabitant rise to explain that never before within his recol lection has there been so forward a spring The continued favorable weather has warmed the earth to a depth that even the oak trees are swelling their buds into a successful effort at taking foliage. What has rarely ever been before observed, the grass in the plowed fields is sprinkling them with green. Those who rely on the moon for bringing a change in the weather look with anxiety to the full moon of March, on tomorrow, as the time for a change that may possibly be followed by frost. If they be prophets then will damage result. The they be proposed then will damage result. The meion crop is planted, and a large per cent of it is up. The most cautious planters of this section are delaying planting their crops until the prospect of cold is past. The full moon in April will likely be followed by a cold snap this year, as it is early in the mouth, though it cannot be of long duration, as the earth is so warm that its radiating heat will temper the warm that its radiating heat will temper the cold wave.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

"For many months I suffered greatly. My whole system seemed to be entirely run down, my ambition was gone, had pains in my back, and a feeling of lassitude which I could not throw off, I was treated unsuccessfully for kidney trouble. One day at my brother's I saw a botte of Hood's Sarsaparilla and determined to try it. Before the first bottle was taken I can candidly say I was relieved, nd recommend it for kidney or liver complaints."

Becently a company has been organized in Chicago for the purpose of developing certain large iron ore beds which are known to exist in the northwestern part of North Carolina. These iron beds are immense, and are traveable for six, eight and ten miles. They are of a quairity to justify the expenditure of vast sums in developing and working them. This Chicago company was organized with a capital stock of two and one-half million dollars, and the entire stock was taken by six men.

CEORGIA, FULTON COUNTY—TO THE SUPE-Urior Court of said County: The petition of "at-lants Marble company" shows that it was incorpo-rated by said court on the 8th of January, 1887, on the petition of William M. Lowry, Francis M. Co-ker and others. That said petitioners were not aware when they made their application, nor when said order granting them a charter was passed, that a charter had previously been granted James P. Harrison. W. B. Miller and others as "The At-lants Marble company," on the 30th of June, 1886. Petitioner shows that at a meeting of its incorpo-rators and stockholders, held on 10th of February, 1887, after it had complied with its charter and commenced ousiness as "Attants Marble company," it was unanimously resolved that application should the was unanimously resolved that application should be made for change of name to "Ebony Marble company." Petitioner therefore prays that the word "Atlanta" be stricken in its corporate name, and its charler amended by substituting the word "Ebony," so that the corporate name of petitioner may be "Ebony Marble Company."

BISMARCK'S septennate bill passed the reichstag yesterday by an overwhelming majority. Thus, after only a few weeks waiting, the government has carried its point and silenced its opponents. The bill provides for a seven years appropriation of funds and supplies for the army. Germany is now in a position to defy its enemies and would rather like than not to sprinkle salt on the tail of its old enemy, France.

A REPUBLICAN exchange says that the worst thing about the next senate is its too nearly even balance, politically, which can-not help causing much friction and ill-feeling. Judged from a republican standpoint this is a very bad thing, though the democrats are not complaining about the friction. In fact we would be glad to stand the increased friction caused by just one more democratic member. This would be a much worse thing for the republicans than as it is now. But the country clamors for the change and it must come.

THE conventional crape indicative of death within was not hung on the door of the Beecher house, but in its stead a beautiful bouquet of white roses and lilacs were placed on the knob. During the evenings that the dead body lay in the house, the rooms were brilliantly lighted and the family were attired in their Sunday garments. Nothing bore the semblance of death except of course the saddened hearts of those present. This was all done in accordance with Mr. Beecher's expressed wishes, and though rather at varience with custom, has its advantages over the usual death watch.

THE convention of southern passe agents at the meeting in Washington agreed to make rates for the military encampment at the capital in May, at three quarters of a cent per mile for parties of twenty-five or more, citizens or soldiers. The convention declined to make special rates for soldiers and citizens, claiming that class discrimination was not allowed by the inter state commerce law. Nobody can complain, however, at the rates given, which are the lowest on record for similar occasions. If this is one of the results of the new law it certainly begins operation in a very satisfactory man-

Or the relations existing between the president and the democratic representatives of the last congress, and the probable attitude of the next. Mr. Nordhoff, the Washington correspondent of the New York Herald, says:

Congress closed with a much better understan ing between the democrats and their administra tion than at the beginning. Many representatives and senators saw that the president has on the whole given them prudent advice; that he has been doing his duty as a democrat; that his administration of the same property of the same propert stration of the government has been economical, efficient, without scandals and in every way creditable to the party, and that to hold aloof from ar attack their own administration was not calcuack their own administration was not calcu-to help the party next year. In the new congress some disturbing elements will be absent, and there is a promise of harmonious action upon demes of policy, with a determination to

In the next senate, Hearst, democrat, of California, will succeed Williams, republican; Turpie, democrat, of Indiana, will suc. ceed Harrison, republican; Blodgett, democrat, of New Jersey, will succeed Sewell republican; Daniel, democrat, of Virginia, will succeed Mahone, readjuster-republican; Stewart, republican, of Nevada, will succeed Fair, democrat. These are all the political changes. Then, from Florida, General Finley will take the place of Jones: Illinois sends Farwell to serve the remainder of the late General Logan's term; Conger, of Michigan, is succeeded by Stockbridge, and Mc-Millan, of Minnesota, by ex-Governor Davis ; Governor Paddock is the successor of Van Wyck, of Nebraska; Miller, of New York, retires in favor of Hiscock, and Mitch ell, of Pennsylvania, in favor of Quay; ex Governor Bate, of Tennessee, follows Withorne, and Judge Reagan, of Texas, has seenred Maxey's seat, while Camden, of West Virginia, after a protracted struggle, ha been superseded by Lucas. Unless Turpie, of Indiana, is counted out by the republican in organization, Riddleberger, readjuster, of Virginia, will have the deciding vote. The republicans, however, will hardly dare to override the clearly expressed choice of the legislature of a sovereign state,

Our New Hog's Fat.

The esteemed New York Sun, commenting on the report that the Armours and their colleagues who are engaged in the "lard and pork producing business," are about to establish a number of cotton-seed oil mills in the south, indulges in some remarks that seem to us to be somewhat out

The point of the whole matter, to make long story short, is, that those who propose to establish these new oil mills in the south have been driven into the undertaking ecause the Standard Oil company has suceeeded in absorbing a majority of the existing mills. As cotton-seed oil enters largely into the manufacture of lard and other hog into the manufacture of lard and other products, the Armours and their colleagues are compelled to have it, and, rather than have their business depending on the whim of a monopoly, they propose to establish mills of their own.

The New York Sun is inclined to protes against the intimation conveyed in these statements, and objects to lard into which cotton seed oil enters, alluding to it as "nasty." The Sun, usually correct, is wrong in this. There is nothing purer or more nutritious than cotton-seed oil, and the knowledge that it enters largely into lard production is a fact calculated to soothe the acerated uneasiness of the sunny south.

The south is very greedy about hog's fat. We consume a great deal of the stuff in one shape and another. The frying-pan is a big thing in its way, and we were under the mpression until lately that we were getting the fat of diseased hogs, and getting it, as the boys say, in the goozle. It is a great relief to know that the basis of our imported hog's fat is pure cotton seed oil. fried bacon tastes better, and our biscuits are lighter and more palatable.

It will be remembered that cotton-seed oil was at one time offered to our people as a substitute for hog's fat, but our cooks and our epicures rebelled against it. The result is that the great lard producers of the northwest have seized on the harmless oil, and by a slight chemical change convert it into pure less lard fresh from hogs fed on red corn.

The solid south stands on the very verge and precipice of progress. Where Titles Are Cheap.

The New York Telegram protests against the newspaper custom of calling the mayor "his honor." Our contemporary says:

There is no legal authority to give him this title, any more than there is to style him "His Grace" or "His Holiness." Official titles are not authorized anywhere in the United States, by law, we believe, save in the state of Massachusetts, where the constitution (which was adopted before the close of the revolutionary war) entitles the lieutenant-governor "His Honor" and the governor "His Excellency." Mayor Hewitt should suggest to the clerk of the aldermen that in drawing offi-cial papers for the board any description of him save by the simple name of his office should be

It is useless to talk about legal authority. The people of this great republic are doing business on a large scale, and they require no letters patent or anything of the sort when it comes to conferring titles. They will create honorables, excellencies, colonels, generals and esquires whenever it suits them, and without regarding the fitness of things.

Fortunately the titles for which Americans have a weakness hurt nobody. They do not make their possessors a privileged class. They are altogether up in the air.

Perhaps the common use of these titles has had the effect of dignifying the plain "Mr." At any rate, it is certain that our people, when they speak of a really great man, frequently drop a title to which he has a just claim, and address him as "Mr." It is a queer evolution, but it pans out all right.

Men and Their Books,

Literary people, and sensible people who are not literary, are discussing Edward Everett Hale's article on the books which aided in the formation of his character and style. Some of the books mentioned by Mr. Hale will strike many people as being or little or no value.

But this is all right. Because a book does not suit nine out of ten people is no reason why it should not fill a long felt want with the tenth person. If Mr. Hale read certain novels by Jane Austin fifty times over he doubtless knew what he was about. Dickens read the novels of Fielding and Smollet over and over, and George Eliot was always reading the "Imitation of Christ." Shakspeare, Ben Jonson, Emerson and Byron were devoted to Montaigue.

Napoleon liked nothing better than a good novel. In the shadow of the pyramids, confronting savage hosts, and revolving schemes of empire in his teeming brain, he yet foun time to read one of his favorite novels to his officers.

A word as to quantity. Some of our greatest men have been omnivorous readers others confined themselves to a very few of the best books. The Sect of Janin.

Letter from India. The Jains, a most curious religious sect of India, are said to possess great wealth. Their faith which dates back to many centuries before Christ is a mixture of Buddhism and Brahminism, and is a mixture of Buddhism and Branminism, and possesses a copious literature. They worship a god whose principal name is Janin, and who, though omniscient, immortal and uncreated, is no creator, They believe that the world will never be destroyed, but will go on forever, and that each person lives through an infinite number of existences, Those who are good will be reborn as human beings, but those who are wicked will return to this world so unreasonable animals, in consequence of which they are extremely careful of animals, scrupulcusly avoiding the killing of anything that has life. Some use a cloth over the mouth to avoid swallowing insects, for it is quite a nervous thing to feel that one may be swallowing one's own graudfather. The most pious Jains will not light a candle at night for fear of causing the death of moths and other insects, and they would never dream of killing a mosquito. Their priests lead a life of celibacy, and the entire sect is looked upon as a very good one.

COMMENT OF THE PRESS.

New York Sun: "As a distinguished demo-New York Sun: "As a distinguished demo-cratic politician said the other day, 'Mr. Cleve-land is beginning to take notice.' He doesn't shrink from congress or from congressmen as he used to do. The beginning of a happy change has appeared over his political seclusion of two years ago, and who can wonder at Mrs. Cleveland's great popularity upon reflection that this new state of affairs is greatly owing to her influence?"

St. Louis Republican: The interstate commerce bill applies 'only to commerce between the states; and forced not to discriminate where they are subject to national jurisdiction, the railroads will attempt greater discriminations and extor-tions where the interstate law does not govern them, unless they are properly regulated by the states. The passage of the interstate law make the need of state regulation more urgent than ever.

Boston Globe: If figures freshly presented in relation to the increasing ratio tof prisoners to population are authentic, it is time the alarm was sounded and the gancast wind took an entirely different view of the situation. If we have been assidiously engaged, at increasing cost, extending the criminal realm and multiplying the convict population, we ought to so understand it, if only that we may continue to go wrong intelligently.

Boston Herald: Journalist Thomas B. Connery has been confirmed as secretary of legation a Mexico. He is the seventh gentleman of journal istic fame who has been nominated for office by President Cleveland and confirmed by the senate. The policy of the administration in bestowing its favors on the newspaper profession, is in marked contrast with that of its predecessors. When Mr, Evarts was secretary of state he always discouraged the appointment of newspaper men to foreign ports. He was wont to insist that they were needed at home. Perhaps Mr. Evarts was right, but it's mighty pleasant to have the option of staying at home or going abroad.

New York Tribune: No one will Albert Fink's assertion that a narrow and impracticable interpretation of the interstate comm law would be harmful, but some exception may be taken to his view that under the new law the rail-coads may continue to charge more for a short haul than for a long one if that course be "justified by the circumstances and conditions surrounding the case." It is certainly within the discretion of the commissioners to be appointed under the act to take "circumstances and conditions" into consideration in determine account of the control of the cont eration in determining appeals for exemption from the long and short haul provisions, but they, and not the railroad managers, must be the judges whether the circumstances justify the discrimina-

New York Times: The sorely disappointed sup porters of the defunct river and harbor bill have been trying to convince the president that he can make the bill a law by signing it even at this late day. They should know that the bill was allowed to die ot because the president was unable to examine it before the hour of adjournment, but because he was fully acquainted with its character and the manner in which it had been passed. He had excellent reason for his inaction, which was almost equivalent to action in the form of a veto. Possi bly he would have written a veto message if there had been time. It was sufficient for him to know that the bill had not been properly discussed, that it contained indefensible appropriations, and that there was on hand an unexpended balance of $16,000,000 which must be used in river and harbor work. The appeal of the river and harbor congressmen had all the absurdity of unreasoning despair.

Inventing a Language.

From the Youth's Companion People who are acquainted with the charm ing children who enliven Jean Ingelow's novels will remember that two of the little people exercised their wits in the invention of a language, and that to the great embarrassment of their tutor. Such incidents are not confined to fiction; one well authenticated case of the formation of a new language happened in Boston, some twenty years ago.
Twin boys belonging to a family there exhibited an intense affection for each other, and were a ways together. At the usual age they began to talk, but, strange to say, not in their mother tongue. They had a language of their own, and no ould induce them to speak anything else. ersistently refused to utter a syllable of English Their mother relates that although she could not understand their language, she contrived, by at-tention, to discover what they wished or meant. Even in that early stage, the language was com-plete and full; that is to say, it was all the chil-

They were at no loss to express themselves in their games, and chattered together all day long At length they were sent to a school, where they gradually learned English, as children learn foreign language, and the memory of their own speech faded from their minds.

An account of a similar phenomenon, with spe cimens of the language, has been given by Dr. E. R. Hun, of Albany. In this case, the speech was invented by a little girl four and a half years old, with the help of her brother, eighteen months younger than herself.

About twenty of the words are specified, most of which are used in similar acceptions, as mea meaning both cat and furs: miggo-migno, water wash, bath; bau, soldier, music; and so on.

Woman Suffrage in Wyoming. Washington Letter.
One of the prettiest and most preminent members of fashionable society here this winter is a lady who has the proud distiction of having vo-ted for her husband when he ran for congress. The lady in question is Mrs. Joseph Carey, wife of the delegate from Wyoming territory. Mrs. Carey, while in no sense a "strong-minded" woman, is an ardent believer in female suffrage. She has seen the practical workings of the system in Wyoming, pronounces as absurd the common argument that the right of suffrage unsexes a woman.

At an evening party recently where Mrs. Carey was giving utterance to these sentiments, Senate Wade Hampton blandly interjected the remark:

"But, of course, you always vote as your hus band instructs you?"

Mrs. Carey's black eyes snapped merrily as she

"Indeed we do not. The first time my husband ran for office I voted against him and my mother supported him. The next time we both oppose him. In each case we thought the other man would make the better officer. I mention this to snow you that in our family, at least, the women use their right of suffrage about as they please. More-over, the conferring of this power upon women has a good moral effect, especially upon those whose husbands are politicians. You may believe that where every woman is permitted to vote the wives of politicians are very chary about unduly criticising the other women. To do so means the creation of enemies for your husbands, who can work him a great injury if they choose. It is a powerful check upon the tongue; I assure you."

MARRIED ON THE SLY. The Son of Tiffany, the New York Jeweler, Pleading for Parental Forgiveness.

A stylish-dressed young man called at the residence of Rev. Ensign McChesney, 289 Fourth avenue, last Tuesday, and introduced himself as Burnett Y. Tiffany. He asked the clergyman if he would perform the marriage ceremony between himself and a young lady of his choice, Miss Emma N. Pierson, of Morristown, N. J. He had passed his twenty-first birthday, he said, and the young lady was also of age. The minister agreed to marry them, and the young man returned with his bride them, and the young man returned with his bride leaning on his arm. Witnesses were called in and the ceremony which made Miss Pierson Mrs. Tifany was quickly performed. After the ceremony the young groom told the minister he was the younger son of Charles L. Tiffany, the wealthy head of Tiffany & Co.'s jewelry house, and was employed in his establishment. Witnesses affixed their signatures to the marriage certificate and the happy young couple departed on their houseymoon. They did not go far, however, for early next day young Tiffany and however, for early next day young Tiffany ap peared at his father's place of business and told the story of his secret marriage to his father's confidential secretary. ominously.

I asked Mr. Randall if there was any danger of an extra session of congress.

What it Costs to Smoke.

Last year the losses by reported fires in the United States reached a total of $120,000,000, or ;an average monthly lost of $10,000,000. This is regard ed as an enormous waste and is largely due to in-cendiarism and carelessness. How to reduce the amount so lost is a matter of constant study. Legislatures, local governments, insurance companies make regulations and exercise the greatest care to prevent fires. And yet the loss they occasion is $60,000,000 per annum less than the amount paid by consumers for cigars, and $86,500,000 less than by consumers for eigars, and $85,500,000 less than the total cost of tobacco consumed in snoke!

Last year tax was paid upon 3,510,898,488 cigars. The average smoker is content with a cigar worth $80 per thousand, or one that retails at 5 cents. On that basis there annually goes up in smoke $180,-000,000, or $15,000,000 every month, or half a million dollars every day. In addition, boys waste on cigarettes $6,500,000, and those who prefer a pipe a further sum of $80,000,000.

further sum of $20,000,000. How many smoke? If we deduct from the total How many smoke? If we deduct from the total population as non-smokers all children under fitteen, constituting 40 per cent of the total population of 60,000,000, it leaves 36,000,000, of whom one-half are females, deducting these gives a male population, above the age of fifteen, of 18,000,000. If six out of every ten males above the age of fifteen smoke, it means that 10,800,000 persons consume 3,510,898,488 eigars, or an average per smoker of 325 cirars per annum. This is less than one cigar of 325 cigars per annum. This is less than one cigar per day. The average smoker, however, is not apt to be content with a daily allowance of one cigar, demanding at least two. If the latter basis is the nearer correct, the army of cigar smokers would be 4,809,449, being 8 per cent of the total popula-tion above the age of fifteen.

Whatever the number of smokers, it is a moderate estimate to place the cost of smoking to the people of the United States at $206,500,000. If the cost of chewing tobacco is added the total expen-diture for tobacco reaches $256,500,000; that is a sum that represents a per capita tax of $3.44 pe annum. If the number of smokers is 4.809,449, the average expense of smoking is $42.09 each per ar-num; if the number is 7,000,000, the cost is $28.64 per individual; if 10,300,000, it falls to $19.12, a sum sufficient to afford one 5 cent cigar daily and leave a balance of 87 cents for extras.

All Styles Suit Her From the Louisville Courier-Journa At the state dinner Mrs. Cleveland took s "new departure" in the style of dressing her hair, and the change was very becoming. Her hair was rolled up from the nape of her neck to the top of her head and puffed as it was worn in the early part of the century. A high Spanish comb was stuck slantingly toward the left side of her head, and the effect was very beautiful. Her rich robes of crimson plush, with tucker and sleeve caps of point duchesse lace, threw out a strong relief to her fair complexion, large, expressive, gray eyes, nut-brown hair, and round white throat. Although Mrs. Cleveland does not appear to care for orns ments, yet she always wears at her husband's en tertainments the diamond necking when plerced, wedding gift. Her ears have never been plerced, so that she does not wear earrings, nor does she wear fingerrings. From the fact that Mrs. Cleveland says that she never feels tired after shaking hands with thousands of people for two or mo hours, many have observed how unusually large and strong her wrists are, as though they were mad and strong her wrists are, as though they were made for the uses they are put to. From the elbow to the hands, Mrs. Cleveland's arms are large. Her hands are a good size and well shaped. She probably wears six and a half gloves. She is fully five feet seven or eight inches in height, and well propor-tioned. She has a lofty, graceful bearing, which is natural and unstudied. Her mold and style is of the kind that improves with age, and merges the girl into a grand woman, who never fades or be-comes unattractive.

Capitolian Modesty Shocked,

From a Washington Letter. The tongue of gossip was busy today with the attentions showered upon a rarejand radiant blonde who was the conspicuous figure in a lower box at the National theater last night, on the occasion of Bernhardt's rendition of "Fedora." Her corsage was decidedly decollete, and a bonquet of pansies seemed to be the focus of eager but evil eyes, to the intense disgust of ladies and gentlemen in the the intense disjust of ladies and gentlemen in the audience who could but note such a conspicuous case of indecorum. That the men who gave this rank offense, under the rare temptation of this exposure, were evidently foreign, with French aspects and inclinations, did not mitigate the measure of their offending, even though the play was of the French Frenchy. Even Washington society is not educated up to such exhibitions as the one noted.

The Pall Mall Gazette denies that yesterday's statement was a garbled version:

The discrepancy was a mere misprint. It is anthentic that General Buller said that in certain localities in Kerry, Clare and Cork an organized stand was being made against the payment of existing rents, but that reuts were generally fairly well paid. A majority of tenants, he said, were anxious to pay, but wanted a reasonable allowance, while a great many others who did not require any allowance would pay if they dared. He teared intimidation was rampant in the country. The people, he said, had sympathy with the National league because they thought it was their salvation. The bulk of tenants had told him that the reducing of rents and the staying of evictions were directly due to the operations of the league. They believed that nobody did anything for the tenants until the league was established. He said it was no longer possible to enforce legal obligations in that part of the country. General Buller further said that the act of 1881, which was intended to remedy this state of affairs had been a failure. He was not prepared to say whether the failure was due to the opposition of the leasue or to a fall in prices.

The Parnellites and Gladstonians rely upon General Buller's evidence to support their demands for a stoppage of eviction and the early production of land legislation. The government was prepared to carry out the plan for a continuous sitting of the house of commons until the fint rule of proceedure should be settled. The speaker, being privately informed of this fact, declared that he was unableto assist in the stoppage of the debate and the government was accordingly obliged to abandon its plan.

Hanging by a Whale's Lip.

From the New York World,

The large right whale which was killed off Amagansett beach, L. I., Tuesday, is down at the bottom of the sea seven miles from shore. All day yesterday strenuous efforts were made to raise the eviathian, but without avail. A tugboat has been engaged to tow the whale around Montauk Point to Promised Land as soon as it rises, in order to se-cure the blubber and bone. When the whale was first struck by Captain Jonathan Edwards it lashed the sea and with a blow of its tail broke in two the boat commanded by Captain Charles Edwards. All the crew were rescued at once except Captain Charles Edwards. The boats could not approach him owing to the frantic fury of the monster. Captain Edwards, who is an expert swimmer, succeeded in diving under the whale's belly. He came up on the other side just beside the whale's nose. In sheer desperation, nothing else being within reach, the drowning man selzed the whale by the lip and hung there until the monster sank, when he loosened his hold and was taken into one of the boats. The boats that went out were commanded by Captain Josh Edwards, Captain Jonathan Edwards and Captain Charles Edwards. David C. Barnes, of Captain Jonathan Edwards's boat, threw the harpoon that fastened the boats to the whale. It was killed by a lance thrown by Castain Locathan Falvards

A MYSTERIOUS DEMON. Encountered in a Tunnel by a Chicago Pa-

"There are three tunnels on the Dakato division of the northern railway," said a man at the Tremont house to a reporter. "They have been cut through solid rock, and are low and squatty. No. 8 tunnel, the longest of the trio, is located near Sparta, Wis. It is 3,840 feet long. As a train approaches the mouth of this immense hole the iron doors at its entrance are opened, and then closed as the last car passes over the threshold. the wheeling is very scaly. All the lights in the cars are turned down, and the fireman endeavors to caicle the locomotive into emitting the minimum amount of moke. As the train near the other mouth the hole the Iron dcors swing open to admit of its passage. When the last car has emerged into daylight sgain it devolves upon a man to walk through the tunnel to see if the track is clear for the next train. This man has been stationed at the tunnel for many years, and is well known to all the trainmen along the line.

"A few days ago the patrolman started to go through the tunnel in rear of a trieight train. He carried a lantern with him. As he neared the center of the hole he heard an ominous sound, which grew in volume as he continued his lonesome march. Soon the great hole rang with a mighty rear. The terror stricken patrolman heard the clatter of feet on the rock floor. He started to beat a hasty retreat, but before he had taken a dozen steps he was driven against the roof of the tunnel and then butted half a hundred feet along the floor. His lantern was smashed and his clothes were in tatters. Pulling himself together as fast as circumstances would permit, the terrified man ran to the mouth of the tunnel, with the same unearthly noises still ringing in his ears. He hailed the trainmen, and told them that the devil was in the tunnel. They laughed at him, and he showed them his bleeding wounds and tattered clothes. The trainmen opened the iron doors and peered into the dark hole. They could see nothing, but the noises they heard went far to satisfy them that what the patrolman had said was true. When asked to describe the mysterious stranger in the tunnel. the patrolman had said was true. When asked to describe the mysterious stranger in the tunnel. the patrolman had said was true. "It was finally agreed that the devil must be driven from the tunnel. A hand car was taken from a section house near by and piled so high with railroad ties that it choked the immense aperture. When all was ready the car was pushed down the incline. The men listened. They heard the rattling of the car as it gained in momentum, and then a hoarse unearthly bellow broke upon their ears. They ran to the other end of the hole, opened the doors, and awaited for the devil to come out. Rushirg forward through the tunnel were two bla-zing eyes, and as they thought, a dozen feet. A moment later a lather flaked and red eyed Montana steer emerged from the mouth of the tunnel and glared at him. This was the devil. He had escaped from one of the cars of the freight train while it was passing through the tunnel, and strange as it may seem, had not heen injured by his fall. He was lassed and driven back to his place among his companions. The trainmen laughed themselves sick, but the patrolman was so badly scared that he couldn't speak. The next time he went through the tunnel he was armed to the teeth."

An Incident Which Could Have Happened Only in Boston. From the Boston Herald.

I have seen almost everything done in a horse car, from spanking a recalcitrant baby to the perusal of an alarming volume of anatomy, but I never happened to travel down town with a "corresponding secretary" until the other day. The car was loaded with passengers, and, squeezed between me and an individual who looked as though he had been to a fureral sata a little woman with a he had been to a funeral, sat a little woman with a black shopping bag on her knee. Presently she managed to get elbow room sufficient to open the bag, which was filled with divers and sundry artibag, which was filled with divers and sudary stu-cles which shall be nameless. Letters and a quan-tity of stationery protruded for an outer pocket, and these she rattled through at the risk of upsetting the whole concern in the straw, until she found a particular epistle that it grieves me to admit I read as well as herself. It was impossible to avoid seeing its contents unless I closed my eyes, for it was held in a way either to shut out my view or to make me turn my head and look down my other neighbor's ear. The ear was not attractive, and so I read the ear. The ear was not attractive, and so I read the letter. After this had been accomplished, a vigorous search was again made in the bag for what proved to be a stylographic pen. Then a note paper was selected, and, the bag serving for a portfolio, this person coolly began to indite a reply to the effusion we had just read! If she had only fivited me to write it! But she did not. Her pen flew along regardless of the jinterested gaze of a dozen pairs of eyes now intently watching the composition; and eyer, now and then, when the sea position, and every now and then, when the sea was pretry heavy, she would pause, as though in deep meditation, and then, as travel again became normal, return to her missive. Had she been in her own apartment she could not have been more unconcerned. Finally, as the car approached West street, the letter came to an end, it was fold-ed; another hunt for an envelope; then a stamp, applied in the legitimate fashion; the envelope flap sfuck down; the superscription inscribed, and with a nod to the Jibrarian—beg pardon, conductor— out hops the scribe and disappears in the crowd of Winter street! I am certain this episode could only have occurred in Boston

NOTHING HIDDEN

THE MANUFACTURERS OF CLEVELAND'S SUPERIOR BAKING POWDER HAVE FOR MANY YEARS MADE KNOWN TO THE PUBLIC ALL THE INGREDIENTS OF THEIR POWDER.

In these suspicious times it is not enough that manufacturers of food preparations base their claims for patronage on the simple statement that their goods are "absolutely pure The absolute purity of a poison intensifies the baneful effe of its improper use. The absolute purity of ammonia, a drug often used in the manufacture of baking powder and in some of the powders most largely advertised, greatly increases the force of the objection made by the most eminent scientists of our day to the use of ammonia in food. This protest of the medical and chemical professions is due to the fact that ammonia-a product of decompositionwhen taken into the stomach with our daily meals is exceedingly injurious.

Hence the public should insist upon knowing what all food compounds contain and ALL that they contain. Let the edict go forth that no article intended for use in the preparation of our daily bread shall receive public support unless the manufacturers' formula be published. Then shall we have less imposition practiced upon a confiding public, and as a result less injury to the public health.

Cleveland's Superior Baking Powder is made only of strictly pure Grape Cream of Tartar, Bicarbonate of Soda, and a little wheat flour, the latter to preserve the strength of the powder; nothing else whatever. CLEVELAND BROTHERS,

NEW YORK STOCKS. Stocks as Reported at the New York Stock NEW YORK, March 11.—Today was the dulles

day in the stock market this week, and while prices were firm throughout most of the day, the trading was almost emtirely professional, and pend-ing the final outcome of the Baltimore and Ohio scheme, the operators were waiting. There was no news in regard to it or anything else of import-ance. The four or five stocks which have monop-olized business for the past week did the usual pro-portion of trading today, while the remainder in the general apathy existing were for the most part extremely dull and devoid of feature. A rumor was circulated in the board in the afternoon that the Baltimore and Ohio scheme was off, which led to some selling in the last hour, but a better tone was developed just previous to the close, when it became known that an extension of time had been granted to the syndicate. Western Union was moderately strong early in the day, which in connection with the advance in American Cable stock attracted considerable attention. Richmond and West Point was the conspicuous weak stock of the active list, its great decline being in the last hour. The opening this morning was tame and uninteresting but firm throughout, advances over last evening's prices ranging from ½ to ½ per cent. There was an inclination to heaviness in the early dealings, but it soon disapppeared and prices were brought up to a shade above the opening figure. The market then became extremely dull but malned firm. In the afternoon there was still less activity, and a short period of heaviness was succeeded by a renewal of the steady hardening of reliefs. The lest hour backers, was sure ready of the steady hardening of the st The opening this morning was tame and uninter values. The last hour, however, was marked by renewed activity, accompanied by weakness, and the early gains in many cases were completely wired out, Richmond and West Point being the most noticeable for the decline established. Although the market closed on a rally it was heavy at the figures. The total business for the day was 2.0,000 shares. Closing prices today show irregular changes, although advances are slightly. In the majority, and the only important difference was a decline of 1½ per cent in Richmond and West Point.

was rather ragged, but the general tone of the mar-ket proved toppy, and after numerous small duc-tuations the market closed dull 495 points under last evening. There was very little demand to cover, some unloading of long cotton and the bulls found it d'ifficult to obtain supporting features. The shrinkage of interior stocks is not so great as anticipated, actual cotton sells less freely and spec-plation abroad is subsiding.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Features of the Speculative Movement in Special to The Constitution.

CHICAGO, March 11—The wheat market was un-settled and nervous today and generally weaker, but the closing prices for the day were a shade higher than those of yesterday. The market opened steady with May delivery at 82%, from which point it advanced quickly to 83% but began to break down again under the free pounding of the bears. On the way down a rumor was again started that several large failures had occurred which pro-duced a panicky feeling and caused another break in Msy to 81%c. When it was found that only one failure had occurred and that of a local operator. the market reacted on the afternoon board and May advenced to 82% and closed for the day at 83%. Export clearings were larger, aggregating 25,000 bushels from three ports. The market for corn opened 1/c higher but reacted under rather free offerings; May falling back to 40%c, rallied and closed at 41% to 41%c. The receipts were somewhat large, which, together with the weakness in wheat, produced an easier Ceeling.

Oats also ruled easier in sympathy with the other markets and closed at % to % lower.

There was very little doing in mess pork, and trading was confined to a few settlements of May and June contracts and June contracts.

Free offerings by two or three prominent local operators caused a break of 15 to 29 cents per 100 pounds in lard, and the prices closed at about in-

Short ribs were weak under large offerings and closed 25 cents per 100 pounds lower.

NOTICE.

OWING to my engagements with the Glen Mary Coal and Coke company, which require all my time and attention, I have this day sold my lumber, lime and wood business to Mr. A. M. Allen, formerly of Dunning & Allen, and who has also been with me in the lumber business for the past three years. In retring from the lumber trade I thank the public for their liberal patronage extended me in this line of my trade and I respectfully ask for my successor a continuance of your liberal patronage. I will devote my whole time in future to the sale of coal and coke and can be found at my office, 20 Magnolia street, opposite the Atlanta cotton factory. Respectfully.

FIRST METHODIST CHURCH.—A meeting of great interest is in progress at the First Methodist church, conducted by Rev. Dr. Morrison, assisted by other ministers. Bishop Key was present Thursday night. Large numbers have come forward for prayer. On Sunday there will be baptism administered, and several members received into the church. A cordial walesma is a standed all. The meetings dial welcome is extended all. The meetings will be continued next week.

DIED YESTERDAY MORNING .- Jimmie Buchanan, aged 16 years, died yesterday morning at his mother's home, No. 39 Church street, after an illness of two weeks. The boy was very bright manly little fellow, and for a long time previous to bis death was engaged in the kid glove department in McConnell & James's store. His death was due to typhoid fever and congestion of the lungs. He was a cousin of Oris Bloodworth, the young man who was killed a few days ago by falling from Chamber-

JUSTICE COURT .- Annie Mitchell, a colored girl, was before Judge Tanner yesterday on the charge of stealing an umbrella from J. A. Jacobus. For want of evidence the accused was discharged. Justice Landrum investigated a case against Benjaman Kelly. The prisoher was rested on a warrant sworn out by Moses Brogden, who charged him with trying to evade paying for the impounding of an unruly bull. Upon the amount being paid by the accused, the case was dismissed. The defendant was required to pay the costs of court.

THE CITY COURT.—The city court met yesterday morning at 9 c'clock, Judge Van Epps presiding. Thomas Gliver was tried on the charge of carrying concealed weapons and convicted. Sentence in his case was reserved till today. Themas Brady was tried for assault and battery and acquitted. Lemuel Bone, who was convicted several days ago of larceny from the house, was sentenced to pay a fine of $10 and costs, or to go to the chain-gang for five months. At 3 p. m. the court ad-jeurned to meet at 9 this morning.

A SAD DEATH.—Mand Isham, infant daughter of Professor and Mrs. John Isham, died yesterday morning at her parents' home 41 Crew street. A few days ago the bright and Iovely face of little Mand Isham brought sunshine into the home of her parents. Her form is now cold in death; the sweet innocent prattle of the childish voice is bushed. She has re-

The friends and acquaintances of the family and of Mrs. E. A.JAngier are invited to attend the funeral from the residence, 41 Crew street, this morning at 11 o'clock.

Religious Meetings.—The Rev. Spencer Kenard, D. D., of New York, arrived in the city yesterday and will remain two weeks or more, assisting Dr. Hawthorne in a series of meetings. He preached last evening at the First Baptist church and delighted the large congregation present. He is a preacher of great power and carnestness, and although not a professional evangelist, has had large experience in revival meetings. He will fill the pulpit at the First Baptist church at the morning and evening service tomorrow. He will output at the First Baptist church at the morning and evening service tomorrow. He will preach every night next week at 7:30 o'clock, and, together with Dr. Hawthorne, will hold a meeting, especially for the benefit of the young people, at 4 o'clock every afternoon during next week.

TWO MAMMOTH ASSOCIATIONS

A HOUSE-LOUIS JAMES AND MARIE AINWRIGHT, AT MATINEE AND TO-Southern Pool Association and the Southern tailway and Steamship Association Units— The Hasdquarters to be in Atlanta—Colo-nel Ogden to Arrive Shortly.

He is a Hustler.—A letter from the tax collector of Pickens county was received at the executive office yest orday asking that his tax books be forwarded to him as he wanted to begin work at once. Such energy is commendable. None of the railway officers in this city, however, are in possession of any definite in formation touching the details of the consolidation. All they know, positively, is that the agree int for the consolidation has been entered into by all the lines composing the two associations, and that Colonel James R. Ogden has been elected commissioner of the consolidated organizations.

The headquarters will be in Atlants, and Colonel Ogden will arrive here in a few weeks. It has been determined to retain in office all the men who now have charge of the separate organizations. These officials are to be kept in their present positions until next July, when the convention of the members of the consolidated associations will be held in Atlanta.

The terms of the agreement are reported to be that the contract entered into by the two associations shall go into effect the first day of next April, and shall terminate on the 31st day of next July. The name of the consolidated associations shall be "the Southern Railway and Streamship association."

THE FEDERAL COURTS. A Number of Acquittals, but No Convic-

Yesterday four cases were submitted to the jury, and in each a verdict of not guilty was rendered, viz.: E. Griggs, of Pickens county, charged with working; John F. Cochrane, of Department of the property of the p Dawson county, charged with illicit distilling and working; D. H. Clonts, of Paulding county, and Newton Denson, of Henry county, charged with the same offenses.

In the case of E. E. Guggs, the government introduced as a witness Marion Blackwell, who is now in the custody of the sheriff of Pickens county with several state cases against him. A writ of habeas corpuc was issued, directed to John E. A useful stimulant of the urinary glands has ever been found in Hostetters's Stomach Bitters, medicine which not only affords the requisite stimulus week.

Stiering up the Alabamians.—Special Revenue Agent Colquitt left the city on Monday last for Alabama, accompanied by Deputy Marshals Abercrombie and Hider and started on a raiding trip into Randolph county, remaining there until Thursday. During the mid they discovered and destroyed five illicit distilleries, turning out upon the ground thirten gallons of corn whisky and about 10 000 gal ons of beer. Owing to the rainy westher none of the distilleries were in operation, and but one copper still was secured. One of the men arrested remarked to the officers that the Alabama 'stillers were not afraid of the revenues, but owing to the fact that when arrested he was pulled out of bed hugging a double barreled shotgun and an ugly looking pistol, the statement may be taken with a few grains of allowance. When asked why, if they were not afraid of the revenue men, the stills were all taken from the furnaces, he stated that it was because they would be stolen by other moonshiners, "especially those Georgia fellers," who slip across the line and take possession of anything their Alabama brethren may leave lying around loose.

They were Not Indicted.

The man-about-the court-house who gave The Covergement was accompanied by Deputy Man additional effect of expelling from the blood impurities which it is the peculiar office of those organs to eliminate and pass off. The Bitters is also a purifier and strengthener of the bowells, an invigorant of the stomach, and a matchless remedy for biliousness and fewer and ague. It counteracts a tendency to premature decay, and sustains and comforts the aged and infirm.

A letter received at the executive departmen A letter received at the executive department yesterday, makes inquiry as to whether or not the legislature of Georgia has ever passed a pension law applicable to confederate soldiers mustered and enlisted in Georgia, and whether or not Georgia has established a soldiers' home for aforesaid individuals. The inquiries are made in behalf of Randle McCardle, a poor crippled soldier, who two years ago applied for a pension from the state of Florida, but it was disallowed him, because he was not a Florida soldier.

A reply was sent to the effect that Georgia made provisions for only such resident exsoldiers as had lost limbs, granting them an appropriation every three years for the purchase of artificial limbs. Georgia makes no dictinction against the soldiers of other states, and in this respect some of the other southern states might well imitate her. Under the provisions of the Georgia act of September 20, 1879, all exconfederate soldiers, resident in the state, who lest limbs while in the service, are made beneficiaries whether they enlisted in Georgia or not.

MEMORIAL DAY. Arrangements Making for Its Proper Celebration in Atlanta. The Ladies' Memorial association, of this city, have already begun to make their arrangements for a proper celebration of memorial Day, which occurs on April 26th, and in this they have been promised the full sympathy and earnest co-operation of the Fulton County Confederate Veterans' association. Correspondence has already passed between Mrs. George T. Fry, secretary of the memorial association, and Captain W. A. Wright, president of the Confederate Veteran's association, with regard to the matter, and the latter has assured the Ladies' association that the veterans will be ready, when called upon, to aid in any way in their power.

The Remedy to be Applied. Comptroller-General Wright received yesterday the following anonymous letter from Thomaston, Ga .:

ton, Ga.:

"Dear Sir: It seems to me that things are getting mixed in our county. Mr. T. J. Brown was elected tax collector in our county, and has made his state bond, received his commission and been sworn in as tax collector for our county. He has not made his county bond, and the chances are that he will not. Mr. Abercrombie refuses to act, believing that he cannot do so legally, and there are everal special taxes that need looking after. Now, where is the remedy? Something ought to te done soon. Perhaps you ought to see to this matter."

Captain Wright states that the remedy in this case is found in Sec. 931-3 of the code. Where a tax collector falls to make his county bond the ordinary may appoint a person to act as county to county according may appoint a person to act as county tax collector, and take his bond. The party so appointed is required to perform the same duties and is subject to the same penalties as are imposed upon regularly elected tax collectors for county pur-

Quick Work,

From the New Haven Register, March .7th, 1887.
Thursday afternoon, February 17, Mr. H. P. Hubbard arrived home from Rochester, N. Y., Thursday afternoon, February 17, Mr. H. P. Hubbard arrived home from Rochester, N. Y., where he had taken an advertising contract for over $100,000 from the famous Hop Bitters company. In making it he bound the H. P. Hubbard company to contract for and have 90 per cent of the papers running the advertisements on or before March 10. Considering that February was a short month, and that the contract included every leading daily and weekly newspaper in the United States and Cauada, this was an unusually short time. On figuring up this noon they find that they have closed contracts with 92 per cent of the papers, and have three days to spare. There is probably no agency in the country so well fixed to handle business in as prompt a manner as this firm.

TAKEN FROM THE BOOKS.

Reported at Police Headquarters:

An Italian laborer at the terra cetta works, on Chapel street, was robbed of one hundred and fifty dellars, in hard cash, yesterday afternoon. The money was tolen from the Italian's bedroom, in John Denceris's residence, 265 West Peters street. The man has been bo ing at Mr. Deneeris's for some time past. He ing at Mr. Deneerise for some time past. He has been a hard worker, and has managed to save quite a snug little sum. He has a limited knowledge of the language and customs and the people among whom he lives and works and is afraid of banks. He has taught himself to believe that his trunk is a been hiding it away in that manner. Yesterday afternoon Mrs. Deneeris and her children were away from home and during her absence a thief entered the house, and going into the Italian's room, broke his trunk open and stole the money, one hundred and fifty dollars. So far no clues to the thief have been discovered.

far no clues to the thief have been discovered.

HE IS STILL LOCKED UP.

Mathew H. Camp, the old man who was arrested night before last by Detectives Aldridge, Reeves and Bedford, is still confined in the city prison. The case was called in police court yesterday morning but at the request of the defendant was continued until Tuesday next. Camp was unable to give bond and was locked up sgain. The detectives feel certain that they have acquired sufficient evidence to secure a conviction.

HE WAS FINED FIFTEEN DOLLARS.

Frank Talmage, the negro man who was arrested night before last by Patrolmen Hudson at d'Cochrap, was arraigned in police court yesterday morning. The evidence showed that the negro gave his wife an unmerofful beating last January. Judge Anderson imposed a fine of fifteen dollars and cost.

THEY SMELT THE WHISKY. Late yesterday afternoon, Detectives Aldridge and Reeves were informed that a Campbell county man had made sale of a barrel of corn whisky and that he would reach the city after dark and divide the liquor among the purchasers. After some inquiry they succeeded in learning the place at which the liquor was to be divided. Soon after dark the officers reached the snot but no one was there. They reached the spot, but no one was there. They could easily smell the tiquor, however, which hadbeen divided and upon the ground found a broken bottle.

THE CASES DISPOSED OF. W. D. Magie and G. A. Bostiek, the two Western and Atlantic railroad shop carpenters who indulged in a fight at the shops several days ago, were arraigned in police court yes-terday morning. The evidence showed that Mr. Magic was responsible for the trouble, and Judge Anderson imposed a fine of five dollars and cost. The case against Mr. Bostick was dismissed.

HE WAS RELEASED ON BOND.

Jake Weldberger, a young German living on the Boulevard, was arrested last night by Call Officer Thompson. Weldberger's arrest was due to a complaint against him by his mother-in-law. Just before dark the old lady cilled at police headquarters and stated that Weldberger had his wife, her daughter, locked up and had been abusing her. Weldberger deposited $15 and was released. The case will be called in and was released. The case will be called in police court this morning.

WITH A CARVING KNIFE.

T. S. Sneed, who works at Grant park, was given a cell in the city prison last night by Patrolmen Poole and Walton. Sneed is charged with drunkeuness and disorderly conduct, and the stationhouse keepers have instructions to detain him until a peace warrant can be predetain him until a peace warrant can be pro-cured today. Sneed's arrest was due to a com-plaint lodged against him by his wife, who says he tried to kill her with a carving knife.

LOUIS JAMES AS VIRGINIUS

A Revival of the Legitimate Last Evening at DeGive's.

Louis James made his first appearance here as a star, last night in Virginius.

He has long been regarded kindly by those who have seen him in minor parts, and a large audience was present to witness his production of Sheridan Knowies's great play, Virginius. The performance from beginning to end was a most artistic one, and one that could not fail to please the entire audience.

one that could not fail to please the entire audience.
Great field is given an actor to show his strength in Virginius, and Mr. James has the conception and ability to play the part with the greatest precision and with remarkable effect. Numerous compliments were paid him during the progress of the play, and after each act he was called before the curtain, Mr. James is an actor who will hereafter shine among the greatest actors of the world. He has a wonderfully fine face, his voice is strong, flexible and melodious and his acting is polished and artistic. He combines Booth's conception with Forrest's rendition, and his rapid progress will, in the future, be more than sustained; for with the exception of Booth, he will rank as the first actor on the American stage

Miss Marie Wainwright, as Virginia, shared the honors with Mr. James. She is an actress who has made a reputation throughout the union, and where she is best known is most admired. She is a beautiful and talented woman, and she and Mr. James are going hand in hand to fortune and fame.
Mr. F. C. Huebner as Appius Claudius and Mr. F.

PETE, THE APPLEJACK MAN. He is Nearly a Hundred, Never Wears Shoes and Drinks a Gallon a Day.

He is Nearly a Hundred, Never Wears Shoes and Drinks a Gallon a Day.

From the New York World.

Between Flagtown, N. J., and Posttown, about fifty yards behind the road that winds around the foot of Neshane mountain, in a plain, whitewashed cottage, old Uncle Pete Delts has extracted applejack from the julcy apples of Somerset county for half a century. Uncle Pete's age is a mystery to the oldest inhabitant. He was born so long age that Uncle Pete himself has forgotton the year. When asked he invariably says that he is "nigh on ninety," although it is evident that he has not long to live before completing his century. A more faithful counterpart of Rip Van Winkle cannot be imagined. Although he is still active he has never been known to make a mistake in his accounts with the government, and he has in the past made as much as 10,000 gallons of apple jack in a season. Close to the porch there is a spring, cool and refreshing, just as it comes from the heart of the mountain. The water is led to a trough through a two foot length of gas pipe, which answers all the purposes of a more compligated system of water works. On a half-decayed stump, is a big bottle of jack, and the weary traveler who chances to drop in upon Uncle Pete is always welcome to take "sumpin," which means three fingers of lighning fresh from the still.

For over a quarter of a century he has not worn a shoe and he has drank about a gallon of apple jack daily. His shaggy gray head has been protected by a straw hat which he wears summer and winter. "Hain't been to Somerville guess this thirty year," he says, to show that the city has no charms for him. Yet, notwithstanding, he has kept himself informed on all topics of general interest and he can talk upon almost any subject. Thoroughly original and logical he is looked upon so a powerfully smart man by his neighbors and his decisions in disputes have been the means of avoiding many a long and expensive litigation. He has never worn a stocking in his life, and when he is about he goes barefooted. From the New York World.

crat in principle, and one of the great comforts of his life is the satisfaction of having once seen General Jackson. He never fails to re-mind his visitors of that fact. He leves to talk politics, and his eye flashes as he exclaims "I haven't voted since Abe Lincoln gave the niggers that right, and I never will as long as they 6." He can tell you all about the country before the railroads "cum round," and he delights to spin yarns about the time when to vote you had "to waggin it" thirty or forty miles to get to the polls, and "think nothin" on it." Uncle Pete has a profound contempt for great inventors, and the steam cars have been a thorn in his side ever since the first one sent its clouds of smoke through the woods of south

ren New Jersey.

The old still behind the barn adjoins "The Devil's Half Acre," the only laud alloted to the township of his satanic majesty in that Presbyterian section. It is a ravine in the mountain on Uncle Pete's farm, filled with moss-covered boulders. Uncle Pete explains how the place get its strange name, by telling. how the place got its strange name by telling the story to the Sunday-school children when they drop in to see him on their way down from Sunday-school. As Uncle Pete puts it, the devil and his associates were at work a fixing the mountain one day long, long ago. They had their leather aprons full o' stones when Mrs. Devil blowed the dinner horn, and all on a sudden they dropped the stones in the hole. Mrs. Devil blowed the dinner horn, and all on a sudden they dropped the stones in the hollow and started on a run. The stones rolled over and landed in the gully, and set up so nice that the devil never let anybody take them away since. If anybody wishes to find Uncle Pete in his pristine glory when he virtually reigns supreme it is well to call on him "unexpected like" about "fall time" "just after seeding, when the apples are dropping and have to be picked up and boiled to keep them from rotting. Then wagon load after load come slowly along and the contents are dumped upon the cider bank to be drawn upon during the winter. As each wagon is emptied and the corn cobs that are used to check off the number of bushels are counted, Uncle Pete announces that the time to try a "leetle of the biled" has arrived, and all within the reach of his voice adjourn to the spring and say 'How' biled" has arrived, and all within the reach of his voice adjourn to the spring and say 'How' in one accord. Each in turn picks up the glass—one of the old-fashioned ones with thick bottoms—and fills up. Uncle Pete always goes along, and from a tin cup set aside for his special use takes a nip. It is safe to say that he goes through the same performance at least fifty times a day. To refuse Uncle Pete's hospitality means the sacrifice of his friendship, and he who once refuses to sample "the thing as is nourishin" is never asked a second time.

For every six bushels of apples, on paying the revenue tax of 90 cents a gallon, Uncle the revenue tax of 90 cents a gallon, Uncle Pete exchanges a gallon of applejack. Now and then it occurs when the crop is unusually good that the "bank" becomes full, and then Uncle Pete sets out a notice that he will take in no more apples until the stock on hand has been worked off. Uncle Pete always tries the flavor with each visitor, and says he has done so for sixty years at least. "It ain't hurt me any one. Don't ye recommember Bill—guess ye don't, fur ye warn't born the summer he was a workin' fur me, when we hed the drowt. He was all sunk in with the consumption. Well, I made him all right ag'in by jist lettin' him take all the juice he could carry, and the last time I seed him he weighed nigh on a hnndred and sixty." However it may be, Uncle Pete ascribes his good health to his free use of pure applejack, and he bids fair to live until he has scored a full century.

THE "SEA DEVIL."

A New Destroyer That Will Dive Like a Duck Under a Ship. From the Washington Star.

Duck Under a Ship.

From the Washington Star.

The patents just granted Mr. Sid H. Nealy by the United States and European governments for a marine torpedo, according to the claims made by the patentee, will result in the manufacture of an engine of war almost appalling in its destructive nature. The largest torpedo carries a charge of over 800 pounds of high explesive, either dynamite or nitrogelatine. This charge is contained in a cylindrical body, tapered off cigar like at the ends and encircled by two broad screw blades. A shaft, operated from within the body by a compressed air engine, is held against rotation by flat blades, which take the place of propeller blades, and by a float from which the body of the torpedo revolves. The force of the compressed air failing to affect the shaft reacts upon the body or shell with its screw blades, hurling the whole torpedo along at such a speed, the inventor claims, that no ship afloat can escape it. The moment the destroyer reaches a ship it leaves its float, dives and strikes the ship midway between the waterline and keel. In the same manner it goes beneath the torpedo guards used by ships at anchor. The "Sca Devil," as the new weapon is called, is entirely beneath the water, and its movements cannot be detected from an enemy's ship. It is perfectly noiseless, and has the movement of some strange living mometer of the sea. A signaling device is the only thing seen by the senders after the torpedo starts on its course. This little arrangement arises from the water, presents a brilliant spot of color towards the operator by day and as suddenly disappears at regular intervals. By night a phosphorescent light is given from it, unseen by, the enemy, but plainly visible to those sending the engine on its mission of destruction. The Sca Devil is steered by electric wire from the shore or other place of launching. Mr. Nealy is a gentleman well known in in this city as a member for many years of the local press.
